

From: Southern Environmental Law Center [selc@selcva.org]
Sent: 10/24/2017 1:29:53 PM
To: Tarr, Jeremy M [/o=ExchangeLabs/ou=Exchange Administrative Group (FYDIBOHF23SPDLT)/cn=Recipients/cn=98859532088e4437968231eb6fef6b70-jmtarr1]
Subject: [External] SELC legal action prompts Duke Energy to release flood maps for N.C. coal ash sites

CAUTION: This email originated from outside of the organization. Do not click links or open attachments unless you verify that the attachment and content are safe. Send all suspicious email as an attachment to report.spam@nc.gov.

Protecting the South's environment through the POWER OF THE LAW

Maps released by Duke Energy outline extent of damage if coal ash dams fail again

In response to SELC legal action, Duke Energy released long-withheld emergency planning maps for its coal ash lagoons across North Carolina, revealing to residents and regulators the probable impact of flooding if another dam were to fail at a Duke coal ash storage site.

READ THE STORY

Alabama voters want action on state water plan

A recent survey found that 83 percent of Alabama voters view rivers and streams as state treasures, and four in five support the creation of a comprehensive plan to manage Alabama's water resources.

Read More

SELC, Waterkeeper reach settlement in North Carolina Public Records Act case

In a decisive victory for transparency, the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services agreed to stop charging fees for the inspection of public records, a practice that denied local citizens basic information on the agency's management of industrial agricultural operations.

Read More

Repeal of Clean Power Plan puts coal profits ahead of health, communities

SELC: Trump attack on nation's clean water protections illegal, dangerous

Trump's flood-rules rollback benefits construction interests at the expense of taxpayers

After illegal Trump administration move, agency to reinstate rule to cut car and truck carbon pollution

Federal court rules FERC must consider greenhouse gas emissions from pipelines

DONATE

SELC is proud to have a 100% score from Charity Navigator

Highest 4-star rating from Charity Navigator for 10 years in a row.

Drew Lanham to speak at SELC's 24th Reed Environmental Writing Award ceremony

Drew Lanham, an Alumni Distinguished Professor of Wildlife Ecology at Clemson University, and the author of The Home Place: Memoirs of a Colored Man's Love Affair with Nature, will be the keynote speaker at SELC's 2018 presentation of the Reed Award, an annual celebration of environmental writing held during the Virginia Festival of the Book, on March 24.

What's happening in your state?

SELC works on nearly 200 cases and projects across our six-state region of Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and Tennessee.

SELC is SOCIAL

Images top to bottom: © Duke Energy, © Beth Young, © N/A, © Audubon

Update your preferences | Unsubscribe

© Southern Environmental Law Center
201 West Main Street, Suite 14
Charlottesville, VA 22902 | 434-977-4090

nonprofit software